RUSSIAN
THEATRE
LIFE
IN BRIEF

Editors' Notes

Following the first edition of this Guide that was published in 2006 and launching its online version at Rtlb.ru – Russian Theatre Life in Brief Web site, we present an updated printed edition of the Guide that lists information about some 270 Russian performing arts festivals.

As it was in the previous edition all the Guide entries are arranged according to festival genres, with an addition of a new genre to the guide – Professional theatre schools festivals; the genre sections are further structured according to the festival host cities in the alphabetic order.

For further convenience of this Guide the compilers have incorporated information about application procedures of the listed festivals into the Guide entries, making information about possible open-calls and participation opportunities more visible. Application forms and relevant deadlines for select festivals are included in the electronic version of the Guide at Rtlb.ru

All the other changes to this edition of the Guide relate to the festivals data – each entry of the Guide is presented in two languages, containing information about the festival title, its character

(international, national or regional), festival organisers, addresses and contact information in both Russian and English. Some references indicate the frequency, first edition and the usual time of the festival if such information has been provided by festival's organisers. The English translation has the festival's name transliterated from the native language as well as the most frequently used version of its title in English, if available, or its English translation.

The Guide has two indexes of all the festivals listed in it – according to locations and period of their holding.

The compilers did their best to present precise information in this edition, but complete authenticity and accuracy cannot be guaranteed, and information contained in the electronic version may be more current due to regular updates. Provided you wish to contact the compilers for corrections or for inclusion into the printed and electronic Guide versions of the festivals it does not cover we would ask you to e-mail festivals@stdrf.ru.

Russian Theatre Festivals Guide
Compiled by Irina Kuzmina, Marina Medkova,
Dmitry Rodionov. Moscow, Theatre Union of Russia, 2008

The publisher is very thankful to all the festival managers who are being in constant contact with Theatre Union of Russia and who continuously provide updated information about their festivals for publication in electronic and printed versions of this Guide.

Theatre Union of the Russian Federation

Non-governmental organization of theatre professionals

The history of the Theatre Union of the Russian Federation (Russian acronym: STD) dates back to the time of establishment of Compassionate Actors' Benefit Society in 1877. It was Russia's first organization for artists. In more than 100 years of its existence the association lived through many changes and acted under different names. Currently the Theatre Union is the Society's legal successor with a membership of up to nearly 25 000. It acts as the umbrella organization for 75 local branches in different regions of the Russian Federation with headquarters in Moscow.

Objectives and goals

STD activities aim at comprehensive promotion of the development of theatre and performing arts in Russia in the entirety of its forms with an emphasis on rendering special assistance to regions that are geographically remote from Russian and European "cultural centres".

Cultural policy

The STD adheres to the principles of positioning of theatre and performing arts as one of the most significant components of the cultural policy. Having at its disposal precise information about the state that Russian theatres are in, the STD acts as a mediator in solving problems theatres face in their dealings with the state or municipal structures.

Social aspect

The STD is not a trade union in the generally accepted sense of the term, yet its activities certainly have a social aspect – STD members can count on allowances, preferential health service and rest at the resorts affiliated with STD.

Funding

Main sources of STD revenues are membership fees, earnings of its affiliations, including health resorts, rest homes, manufacturing theatrical cosmetics, from sponsorship and target grants for selected programs from the federal government and the RF Ministry of Culture.

Std grants and scholarships

Annually the STD gives nearly 70 scholarships to young theatre specialists and more than 50 grants to theatre professionals from different regions of Russia for study trips – mainly to Moscow and St.Petersburg.

Artistic programs

The great majority of theatre festivals in Russia are held with the support of or under the aegis of the Theatre Union, which renders assistance in organisation, programming and maintaining contacts with partners abroad, information support and partial funding, etc. Aside from that the STD regularly holds conferences, exhibitions of theatre set and costume design, seminars, workshops and master classes given by leading theatre professionals. Special STD committees and departments act for the purpose. They are engaged in work related to different types and aspects of theatrics as follows:

- Drama theatre
- Musical theatre, opera, ballet, contemporary dance
- Theatre for children and youth, puppet theatre
- Amateur theatre
- Scenography
- Theatre criticism
- Dramaturgy
- Directors guild
- Theatre management
- Professional education

- Department for the Coordination of STD branches in RF regions
- Centre for support of Russian-speaking theatres in CIS and Baltic Countries (long-term programme supported by the federal government)

Venue

The Theatre Centre on Strastnoy Boulevard located in Moscow's downtown and managed by the STD boasts the state-of-the-art equipment and a hall accommodating 400 spectators. The Centre offers its stage for the productions of Russian and foreign young directors; it holds festivals and offers free public lectures for theatre specialists of different theatrical disciplines. The Centre welcomes creative partnership and theatre projects.

Library

The STD library is one of Russia's most authoritative repositories of literature and archives relating to writings on the theatre arts. Its stock of books and magazines in more than 30 languages alone amounts to 450 000 pieces.

International cooperation

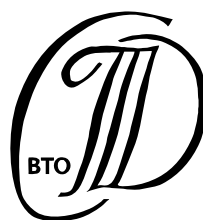

The Theatre Union of the Russia promotes international cooperation and exchange of information on national and international level and acts as a partner in international projects. The STD also hosts Russian centres of international theatre organizations UNIMA, ASSITEJ, OISTAT and AITA.

Publishing

The STD founded the own publishing house A.R.T. (the Russian acronym for Artist-Director-Theatre) and edits the quarterly magazine Strastnoy Boulevard, 10 distributed to Russian theatres free of charge. Apart from that the STD supports several popular theatre magazines: Teatr (Theatre), Stzena (Stage), The St. Petersburg's Theatre Magazine and newspaper Ekran i Stzena (Stage and Screen).

Information centre / Rtlb.ru

Relying on its vast database the STD Information Centre strives to ensure accessibility and exchange of information about festivals, workshops and other theatre events, as well as openings for interested individuals, companies or organizations in Russia and abroad. That is achieved through the www.rtlb.ru website and Russian Theatre Life in Brief Newsletter.
